

ABSTRACT

User-authentication data, terminal information, and encoded information are received through infrared communication and/or communication using an IC card, a position-registration request is made to a micro radio-base station 2 on the basis of the received information, and communication performed between a mobile terminal 3 and a micro radio-base-station device is controlled.